V. The Croſs Roads from the ſubordinate Military Stations and Factories, to all the Places of Note within their reſpective Neighbourhoods: With an Index.

By JAMES RENNELL,

Late Major of Engineers and Surveyor General to the Honourable the Eaſt India Company.

Printed by order of the Honourable the COURT of DIRECTORS of the ſaid Company. 1778.

PREFACE.

THE honourable the COURT of DIRECTORS having thought proper to print the BOOK OF ROADS IN BENGAL AND BAHAR for the use of the Company's Servants in those provinces, I have added to it as much as I thought was wanting to render it a complete travelling guide, as far as relates to distances, and the nature of the rivers that interfered the roads. The utility of such a work in any country must strike every one: much more in a country where the people employed by Government are more ignorant, and from the want of local knowledge must depend upon the information of Guides, who often mislead them either through ignorance or interested motives. At best, those Guides know only the most frequented roads; so that in travelling the country no information whatever can be derived from them: and as for the peasantry, or zyts, they cannot be supposed to know the roads beyond the circle of the markets which they frequent.

As the mode of arrangement here differs from that of all other Books of Roads that I have seen, I may be expected to set forth my reason for adopting it, which is, that I consider CALCUTTA, MOORSHEDABAD, PATNA, and DACCA, as the places where the Tables will be in the most general use (the first being the seat of government, and the others either the capital military stations, or factories, or both) and therefore I have framed a separate Table or set of Tables for each, for the ease and convenience of the people residing there: to that, in fact, these four cities may be considered as centres from whence all the great roads issue. The articles in each set are alphabetically arranged, to prevent the necessity of having a number of Indexes.

PREFACE.

THE honourable the COURT OF DIRECTORS having thought proper to print the BOOK OF ROADS IN BENGAL AND BAHAR for the uſe of the Company's Servants in thoſe provinces, I have added to it as much as I thought was wanting to render it a complete travelling guide, as far as relates to diſtances, and the nature of the rivers that interſect the roads. The utility of ſuch a work in any country muſt ſtrike every one: much more in a country where the people employed by Government are mere ſojourners, and from the want of local knowledge muſt depend upon the information of Guides, who often miſlead them either through ignorance or intereſted motives. At beſt, thoſe guides know only the moſt frequented roads; ſo that in croſſing the country no information whatever can be derived from them: and as for the peaſantry, or ryots, they cannot be ſuppoſed to know the roads beyond the circle of the markets which they frequent.

As the mode of arrangement here differs from that of all other Books of Roads that I have ſeen, I may be expected to ſet forth my reaſon for adopting it, which is, that I conſider CALCUTTA, MOORSHEDABAD, PATNA, and DACCA, as the places where theſe Tables will be in the moſt general uſe (the firſt being the ſeat of government, and the others either the capital military ſtations, or factories, or both) and therefore I have framed a ſeparate Table or ſet of Tables for each, for the eaſe and convenience of the people reſiding there: ſo that, in fact, theſe four cities may be conſidered as centres from whence all the great roads iſſue. The articles in each ſet are alphabetically arranged, to prevent the neceſſity of having a number of Indexes.

The

The Table for CALCUTTA does not refer to any of the others; and may therefore form a ſeparate book, as well as a part of the general work. The other three Tables for MOORSHEDABAD, PATNA, and DACCA, are, by a mutual reference to each other, and to the CALCUTTA Table, equally complete with the firſt, but cannot be ſeparated. A Fifth Table contains the principal CROSS ROADS; with an INDEX pointing out the roads from about twenty-eight ſtations in different parts of the provinces to every place of note within their reſpective neighbourhoods. Theſe ſtations are either the ſeats of provincial councils, or of collectors; ſubordinate military ſtations, or factories; or places, which from their ſituation are likely to become military poſts in time of invaſion. It is expected that this latter part of the work will be highly uſeful to Officers who command detachments on actual ſervice, as my own experience has repeatedly convinced me how much it is wanted.

A ſmall Map, which is to be bound up with it, will render the book ſtill more complete, by combining the idea of the reſpective poſitions of places with that of the diſtances.

As there is ſcarce a place of note within the provinces omitted in the four Tables, a traveller cannot be at a loſs to find his route to either of the four cities: for if he ſhould be off the great road, he cannot be many miles from ſome one place mentioned in the Tables. And the Index to the Croſs Roads being equally copious, the roads to the provincial towns will be found as eaſily.

So great a number of references as occur in the book may by ſome be thought troubleſome, or perhaps unneceſſary, but every diſcerning perſon will be convinced that an equal number of repetitions would have ſwelled the book beyond the ſize of a pocket volume, and totally deſtroyed the intention of printing it.

Obſerve

Obſerve in the Tables, that when a reference is made to a place, without mentioning the page, it means a place in the ſame table from whence the reference is made. On the contrary, when the page is mentioned, it refers to ſome other Table. For an inſtance of the firſt kind---Look at Ambooah in the table for CALCUTTA, which ſtands as follows: [Ambooah. See Patna, 1ſt road, 49 . 0.] Here it means that you are to look for the particulars of the road to Ambooah under the article PATNA in the ſame Table; and that the whole diſtance is 49 miles. For an inſtance of the ſecond kind---Look at Bettyah in the Table for MOORSHEDABAD. You are firſt referred to PATNA (page 55) where the portion of road between MOORSHEDABAD and PATNA is included in the road from CALCUTTA to PATNA. And next to Bettyah (page 10) for the road from PATNA to Bettyah: the road from MOORSHEDABAD to Bettyah leading through PATNA.

The references in the Index to the CROSS ROADS are rather more troubleſome, by reaſon that the order of the lines muſt ſometimes be reverſed: as for inſtance, in the road from Dinagepour to MAULDAH (page 156). Here, in reverſing the diſtances, care muſt be taken not to miſplace them: for one might be apt to read 6 . 2 inſtead of 8 . 6 for the diſtance between Dinagepour and Futtypour.

Although no more than about 28 ſtations will be found in the Index, yet by attending to the alphabetical liſts under each ſtation, many more routes may be found. For inſtance, although Deogur is not choſen as a ſtation, yet as the roads from moſt of the weſtern ſtations to that place are inſerted, it is evident that by reverſing them, the ſame purpoſe is anſwered as if Deogur had been made a ſtation. The ſame of many other places. A very little practice will make the uſe of the Index familiar; and its advantages, I have no doubt, will overbalance the trouble of turning over the book.

With

With reſpect to the Rivers---It is well known to Gentlemen who have reſided in BENGAL, that few rivers or nullahs that exiſt in the dry ſeaſon, can be fordable during the rainy ſeaſon, or for ſome months afterwards: the fords therefore muſt be underſtood to continue only from December to June.

The Diſtances, which are in Statute Miles and Furlongs, are reckoned from the following Standards:

In Calcutta - -	from Old Fort William.
Moorſhedabad	from the Palace of Mootyjyl.
Patna - -	from the Kellah.
Dacca - -	from the Engliſh Factory.
Burdwan - -	from the Engliſh Factory.
Dinagepour -	from Rajegunge Bazar.
Iſlamabad - -	from the Old Fort.

And from the centres of all the other ſtations.

The Coſs of HINDOSTAN is about two Statute Miles and a ſixteenth; as appears by the meaſurement of the Road from MOORSHEDABAD to PATNA taken by order of the Emperor. But the computed Coſs of BENGAL and BAHAR is commonly leſs than two miles, and varies more than a fourth part in different quarters of the Provinces. By comparing the diſtances in the Tables with the horizontal diſtances in the Map, it will be found that one mile in ſeven is taken up by the windings of the Roads; which, conſidering the flatneſs and openneſs of the country, is a circumſtance that one would not expect.

As moſt parts of BENGAL and BAHAR are level, or nearly ſo, the Sun's riſing and ſetting may, in clear weather, be as eaſily diſcerned as at ſea; I have therefore added a Table of the time of the Sun's riſing and ſetting, as it furniſhes the eaſieſt method of regulating time for common purpoſes.

TABLE

SUN's RISING AND SETTING.

 The Uſe of the within Table is too obvious to require an explanation. The Latitude of the Place muſt be found in the Map oppoſite to the Title Page. Obſerve, that by Reaſon of the Refraction, the Sun appears to be much higher than it really is; ſo that if the riſing and ſetting be reckoned from the Time when the Body of Sun is quite above the Horizon, it will be neareſt the Truth.
